Recently, a number of new laws, rules and guidance have been issued that are intended to address unfair bias in the real estate appraisal process.

- On July 18, 2024, the CFPB, OCC, FRB, FDIC and NCUA jointly issued final guidance addressing reconsiderations of value (ROVs) for residential real estate transactions. The guidance advises on policies and procedures that financial institutions may implement to help identify, address, and mitigate the risk of discrimination impacting residential real estate appraisals. The agencies' ROV guidance follows May 2024 ROV guidance issued by HUD and the FHFA.
- On July 17, 2024, the CFPB, OCC, FRB, FDIC, NCUA, and FHFA jointly issued a final rule implementing quality control standards for the use of automated valuation models (AVMs) by mortgage originators and secondary market issuers in determining the collateral worth of a mortgage secured by a consumer's principal dwelling.
- In recent years, the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) has brought a number of actions alleging discrimination in the appraisal process. As part of these actions, the DOJ and CFPB have jointly declared that mortgage lenders can be liable under the Fair Housing Act and ECOA for relying on discriminatory appraisals.
- In recent years, California has enacted a number of laws that apply heightened anti-discrimination measures to the appraisal process, some of which apply directly to depository institutions.

Given the number of recent fair appraisal developments, institutions are encouraged to reevaluate their own appraisal and fair lending practices to ensure consistency with current regulatory expectations. This Webinar will highlight those current expectations as set forth in recent guidance, laws and regulations. The Webinar materials will also feature new sample ROV template forms developed by Aldrich & Bonnefin, PLC.
